Triduum to St. Rita of Cascia

I am sure you have noticed that when suffering comes our way we can be helped by people who have experienced the same kind of trouble. A young widow left alone to provide for three small children will be encouraged by the advice and support of a friend who has survived a similar bereavement. One who has coped with losing his job can help us if we are declared redundant. That is why St. Rita can be such a help to us.

In her life she faced most of the kinds of suffering that come our way. Three times she had to endure the pain of a family death: first of her husband- and here there was the added grief that he had been murdered- then that of her two sons. Rita knows too what illness involves: she was bedridden for the last four years of her life, and had suffered for fourteen years from the mysterious wound caused by the thorn from our Saviour's crown of thorns. She knew the pain of unhappiness in the home: her husband was a difficult character and not particularly pious. It saddened Rita that her sons followed their father's bad example. Rita patiently put up with the disappointments she met. Although she had wanted as a young girl to enter a convent, she obediently accepted her parents plan for her to marry. Later when as a widow she applied for admission to the convent she was refused three times before at last being accepted.

When Rita was approximately sixty years of age, while meditating before an image of Christ crucified. Suddenly, a small wound appeared on her forehead, as though a thorn from the crown that encircled Christ's head had loosened itself and penetrated her own flesh. For the next fifteen years she bore this external sign of union with Christ.

It is said that near the end of her life Rita was bedridden at the convent. While visiting her, a cousin asked if she desired anything from her old home. Rita responded by asking for a rose from the garden. It was January, and her cousin did not expect to find one due to the season. However, when her relative went to the house, a single blooming rose was found in the garden, and her cousin brought it back to Rita at the convent. St. Rita is often depicted holding roses or with roses nearby. Join us for this special Triduum to St. Rita beginning tomorrow Monday 20th and finishing with the Feast of St. Rita and the Blessing of the Roses on Wednesday 22nd.

Thought for Today

According to the song, "the greatest thing you'll ever learn is to love and be loved in return." In our better moments, we all know this to be the truth about our human being. For believers, it is no surprise that the very thing we need most stands at the centre of the Christian faith: God is love. The match between our need and God's disclosure is perfect. If we took that really to heart, many things would change: our practice of prayer, our relationships, our joy in believing, our way of sharing our faith, our living of discipleship. All we need is love. The astonishing servant love of God in Jesus is exactly what we most need.

Prayer You are love itself and yet we hesitate. Open our inner selves to your gracious loving, that we may ourselves as beloved and being loved we may learn to love in return.
